

Mick Dejene

Mick is the founder of MVP Dynasty, which is a non-profit foundation that educates youth through workshops and physical activity, allowing them to live a healthier and more prosperous life. Mick graduated from Urbana University with a B.A. in Sports Management. After graduation Mick took the opportunity to travel around the Midwest to play in various “streetball” games. Mick hosted his first annual Street Ball Extravaganza Game at Central State University. The game was highly successful and was later awarded an appreciation award by former Dayton Mayor, Rhine McLin. In 2008, his hard work did not go unnoticed. He was recruited by a well known streetball team and went on a ten city All-Star tour.

Harrisburg Area Community College (HACC) Hall Of Fame player Mick Dejene played for the men's basketball team in the 2001-2002 and 2002-2003 seasons. These were the first two seasons for the program. During Dejene's two seasons, he was the leading scorer and captain. He was also a leader in the classroom and a participant in the EPCC all-star game.

Dejene was a perfect example of a true student-athlete. He had the ability to balance school and basketball. This made him a role model for other student athletes. He is directly responsible for the championship win the season after he graduated. He helped lay the foundation for success.

Dejene started his own program called MVP Dynasty. He is successfully helping youth in his area build confidence, self-respect, discipline, perseverance, teamwork, physical fitness and higher learning through basketball. He continues to be a positive example and role model for youth.

MVP Dynasty was founded by Mick Dejene in 2011 with a mission to assist community youth in growing to become healthy, knowledgeable, self-assured citizens who lead through the presence of positive character. MVP has reached over 3,000 kids with a free in school character and Fitness education tour. MVP Dynasty also organizes community events such as the Annual Family Springfest, Summer Basketball Camps, Teen Summits and AAU basketball.

Mick Dejene has been Training/Player development for over 14 years from the professional level To the tiny tots level. Mick Dejene enjoys working with today's youth to develop the skills they Will need to be successful on and off the court.
